and the capital Letters of each chapter coloured. It was written about the twelfth Century, and differs much from other antient Manuscript Bibles, and also from those printed, of which a particular Specimen is given. There is further to be noted of this Book, that it was bought out of the Collection of a Gentleman, at the great Price of fifty Pounds. In the Dedication to St. Ambrose, the Transcriber says, that this Work was a Penance which he had enjoined himself for a heastly Sin which he had committed.
